

INFECTIOUS DISEASE AWARENESS ONLINE TRAINING

LIUNA Training is pleased to bring a comprehensive Infectious Disease Worker Training Program that targets the diverse cross section of LIUNA's workforce in the United States and Canada, from construction workers, first responders and health care professionals to food service employees, building maintenance staff, mail handlers and many more.

An important part of the program is Infectious Disease Awareness information that is available online and offered by LIUNA Training. The information will help inform workers about the types of infectious diseases found in the workplace, the health risks associated with these diseases, and proven methods of protecting yourself against potential exposure on the job site. Combined with longer courses provided at local training centers throughout the U.S. and Canada, every member of LIUNA is eligible to receive this free online Infectious Disease Awareness information.

To begin this course, follow the link below and click on the LAUNCH button. You must create a user account by filling out the registration form and clicking the Create Account button on the bottom of the form. Please be aware that you will receive an email to confirm your new user account.

<http://liunatraining.org/infectiousdisease/awareness-course.html>

